REASON CODE	REASON CODE EXPLAINED
0 - Refer to payer	The payer's bank is not in a position to pay the Direct Debit; normally due to insufficient funds in the payer's bank account. You may represent up to one month from the original processing day using a Bacs Code '18' – it is recommended that the payer is notified of this 5 working days in advance of the representation.
1 - Instruction cancelled	The Instruction has been cancelled by the payer or their bank. You will need to liaise with the payer to arrange collection of any outstanding funds.
2 - Payer deceased	You will no longer be able to collect from this payer.
3 - Account transferred	The account has been transferred to a new bank or building society. If you have not been notified by Bacs of the new bank details you must obtain a new DDI from the payer. A new advance notice letter will need to be sent out to your payer prior to collecting from the new account details.
4 - Advance notice disputed	The payer disputes time, amount or frequency of advance notice and has requested the single payment to be countermanded. You should not collect further Direct Debits until the dispute has been resolved with the payer.
5 - No account (or wrong account type)	Account Number is not recognised at the paying bank. You should check the DDI information and/or liaise with the payer to obtain alternative account details.
6 - No Instruction	No Instruction held with paying bank. You should check the DDI information and/or liaise with the payer to obtain a new Instruction.
7 - Amount differs	The payer states the amount of the Direct Debit differs from the amount in their advance notice. You should not collect further Direct Debits until you have resolved the dispute with the payer.
8 - Amount not yet due	This indicates that there was either insufficient time between the setup and collection from the client (10 working days), or the payer has stated the date of debiting was in advance of the due date specified in their advance notice.
9 - Presentation overdue	The payer states date of presentation is more than 3 working days after the due date in the advance notice letter sent to them OR re-presentation of Unpaid Direct Debit is more than one month from original Direct Debit processing day. You must give further advance notice to the payer before the Direct Debit is collected.
A - Service user differs	Identity of service user differs from DDI.
B - Account closed	The payer has closed their account for an unknown reason. If the Direct Debit is to continue you must obtain a new DDI for a different/new account.
